6. About this policy

1. Why do we need your personal information?

Protecting your personal information is important to us. We only collect information that is reasonably necessary for us to provide our products and services. We also recognise that some information is particularly sensitive, and we are committed to being transparent about why we collect it, how we use it, and the safeguards we apply.

For the purposes of this policy, personal information means information or an opinion that identifies you, or could reasonably be used to identify you.

We use and disclose personal information only for the primary purpose for which it was collected, or for a related secondary purpose where permitted by law.

Where we use automated decision-making processes that could significantly affect your rights or interests (for example, in digital onboarding or product recommendations), we will provide clear information about the logic involved, the significance and potential consequences of such decisions, and your rights in relation to those processes, in accordance with applicable law.

We collect, hold, use and disclose personal information primarily to establish, manage and administer our products and services, and to comply with our legal and regulatory obligations.

We may also use and disclose your personal information for related secondary purposes, including:

- responding to enquiries or complaints;
- arranging for services to be provided by third parties;
- improving our products and customer service (see 'Will my personal information be used for direct marketing?');
- internal business purposes such as record-keeping, analytics, auditing and training, and otherwise, only where you would reasonably expect such use or disclosure, you have given specific and informed consent, or where use or disclosure is required or authorised by law.

i. Will my personal information be used for direct marketing?

We may use personal information to keep you informed about products and services that may be of interest, in compliance with applicable laws and regulations. Individuals may opt out of receiving marketing communications at any time by following the instructions in our communications or by contacting us (see the section 'How can you contact us about privacy?').

ii. What happens if I do not provide information that has been requested?

You have the right to choose whether to provide your personal information. However, if you decline, we may be unable to fulfil your request for a specific service or verify your identity to protect you from fraud. If you are seeking financial advice, a lack of information may also impact our ability to properly analyse your personal circumstances.

2. What types of personal information do we collect?

We may ask for a range of personal information, limited to what we need, to assist us in providing you with relevant financial products and services. The information we request could include (but is not limited to):

- Your name, date of birth, TFN and contact details.
- Health information, domicile and citizenship status.
- Information regarding dependents and family commitments.
- Bank account, debit card and credit card details where required solely for billing and payment purposes.
- Your occupation, employment history, employment circumstances, details of family commitments and social security eligibility.
- Your financial needs and objectives.
- Your assets and liabilities (current and future), income and expenses.
- Your superannuation and insurance details.
- Your investment preferences, attitude or tolerance to investment and financial risk.

For sensitive information, we require express, informed consent, separate from general acceptance of this policy. Sensitive information is a special category of personal information under the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth). It includes information or an opinion about an individual's racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, religious beliefs or affiliations, philosophical beliefs, membership of a professional or trade association or trade union, sexual orientation or practices, criminal record, health information, genetic or biometric information (such as fingerprints or facial recognition data), and certain other categories. Because of its nature, sensitive information is subject to greater protections and we will only collect it with your express, informed consent, unless otherwise permitted by law. We obtain consent through digital forms, onboarding documents, explicit checkboxes, and written or recorded verbal consent.

We take reasonable steps to protect payment information and, where practicable, do not store debit or credit card details. Where payment information is retained, it is held securely in accordance with our information security policies and applicable legal requirements.

i. How do we collect personal information?

Most of the personal information we collect comes directly from you. This may be provided through application forms or other documents (in writing or digitally), or during interactions with us such as phone calls and interviews.

In some circumstances, we may also collect personal information from external sources, including:

- a parent or guardian (in relation to children);
- persons authorised by you, such as your lawyer or accountant;
- other credit providers;
- publicly available sources, such as directories;
- market research organisations (through surveys or polls);
- third-party intermediaries, such as mortgage brokers;
- credit reporting bodies;
- government agencies, including the Australian Taxation Office; and
- fund managers, superannuation funds, life insurers and other product issuers.

We will only collect personal information from these external sources where it is impracticable to collect it directly from you, or where we are permitted by law to do so.

ii. Can you remain anonymous or use a pseudonym when dealing with us?

If you wish to remain anonymous or use a pseudonym when dealing with us, we may be able to provide you with limited information or services. In many instances, however, it will not be possible for us to assist you with your specific needs if you wish to remain anonymous or use a pseudonym, which may lead to the termination of our arrangement with you. Importantly, providing inaccurate or incomplete information may result in you obtaining products or services that are not appropriate for your needs, potentially leading to financial detriment or loss.

3. How do we protect your personal information?

We take steps to ensure that your personal information is stored securely, whether it is collected in person or through telephone, mail, internet or other interactions with us. Personal information may be held in secure computer systems, paper files or other formats.

Hard copy files are accessible only to authorised personnel and are stored in secure facilities. Computer-based records are protected by password access and other security controls, with regular data backups held in secure off-site storage.

We implement a range of technical and organisational measures to protect personal information from misuse, loss, unauthorised access, modification or disclosure. These include access controls, encryption, regular security audits, staff training, and incident response planning.

In the unlikely event of a data breach, we have procedures in place to contain and manage the incident, including notifying affected individuals and, where required, relevant privacy regulators.

We follow documented data retention and destruction policies to ensure that personal information is securely destroyed or permanently de-identified when it is no longer required for the purposes for which it was collected, unless retention is required by law.

If you cease to be a client, we will retain your personal information for at least seven years to comply with legal and professional obligations. After this period, the information will be securely destroyed.

i. Who do we share personal information with?

From time to time, we may need to share your personal information with entities within the Picture Wealth Group, as well as with external parties. The specific entities we share your personal information with depend on the product or service involved, but could include:

- other financial services institutions – in order to detect, investigate or prevent actual or potential fraud in connection with the products or services we provide to you.

This means that your information may be stored or accessed in overseas countries, including but not limited to, the United States, Taiwan, Philippines, India, Malaysia, Trinidad, Tobago, Singapore, Finland, Belgium and Ireland.

Before disclosing personal information overseas, we take reasonable steps to ensure that the recipient will handle your information in a manner consistent with the APPs. In some cases, we may seek your express consent to such disclosure, and will inform you of any risks involved if the overseas recipient is not subject to similar privacy obligations.

iii. How do we update your personal information?

We will update your personal information if you contact us. We also take reasonable steps to ensure that the personal information we collect, use and disclose is accurate, up-to-date, and complete. We may update your personal information if we believe it is incomplete or out of date by gathering data from other sources such as public records and other organisations.
